NEW YORK (AP)—New York City's vast public school system opened its fall term Monday after settling a labor dispute with its teachers in the nick of time.

It had looked for a while as if the teachers might be absent. Their union called off a threatened strike late Sunday on the basis of a new contract promising pay increases.

The agreement provides for step-ups in pay, amounting to an extra $380 for most teachers, over a two-year period. Current salaries range from $5,900 to $10,455.

The settlement was recommended by a mediation panel set up by Mayor Robert F. Wagner Friday.

Peking Is Hit Where It Hurts

TOKYO (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev, with his charge that Red China would sacrifice half of mankind in a nuclear war to achieve Communist victory, apparently has hit Peking where it hurts.

The Chinese theoretical organ Red Flag Monday called this kind of talk "spittle" picked up from the United States.

Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung does not seem to relish being cast as an enemy of mankind. In the past week his propaganda organs have devoted much space to the subject, all of it seeking to rebut Khrushchev's accusation.

Gronouski Gets Cabinet Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy Monday nominated John Gronouski, 43, a Wisconsin Democrat trained in taxation and public finance, to be postmaster general.

The appointment, which is subject to Senate confirmation, was announced exactly one month after the cabinet post became vacant. Kennedy's first postmaster general, J. Edward Day, resigned Aug. 9, to return to the practice of law.

Gronouski's selection for the $25,000-a-year post was forecast by Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., and by the nominee himself. Zablocki told a state convention of the Polish Legion of American Veterans in Milwaukee Sunday night that he had received word of the impending appointment in a phone call from Kennedy's brother-in-law, Peace Corps director Sargent Shriver.

Quintuplets Doing Well

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP)—The Preito quintuplet boys were doing well Monday, yawning and stretching feebly under eyedropper feeding, while their proud mother pondered where to put them in her one-bedroom house.

Three of the Pritos' 15 other children were also at home. Dr. Robinson Suarez Herrera, chief obstetrician at University Hospital, said the five boys had successfully passed their first danger period and are healthy.

A bulletin issued by the sex-man medical team in charge of the quintuplets' care noted the Juan Jose, the third born, had lost weight but that all five were in "acceptable condition."

Rocky Backs Down On Taxes

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller withdrew Monday his promise to hold the line on state taxes through 1966 and blamed the Kennedy administration for his doing so.

The Republican governor, a potential presidential candidate, made the pledge during his successful campaign for re-election last year.

He told a news conference that he no longer considered himself bound by the pledge because the national administration had failed to achieve the economic growth rate on which he had based it.

Rockefeller said he did not anticipate any new taxes in the next state budget—the one he will send to the legislature next February—but could not make promises beyond then.

Schoolboys Battle Police

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Vietnamese schoolboys fought a 10-minute hand-to-hand battle with combat police Monday in fresh defiance of the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem. Police arrested about 70 of the students and hauled them away in trucks.

The students had barricaded themselves inside Chu Van An boys high school and had gone on strike to enforce demands for the release of about 300 boys and girls arrested Saturday after a demonstration against the government.

On Constitutional Revision

GOP Women Sing Discordant Note

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton asked Republican leaders Monday for party harmony in support of constitutional reform, but organized GOP women sang a discordant note.

At a meeting of the Republican Executive Committee, the governor called for united support on three major constitutional reform questions on the ballot Nov. 5.

The three would: Ask voters if they favor holding a convention to rewrite the 90-year-old basic law; ask them to approve state issuance of scholarship loans and grants, and ask them to okay issuance of $70 million in direct obligation bonds to finance conservation and park development.

Craig Truax, GOP state chairman, said all of the issues had "substantial support" from the meeting.

"We discussed selling the thing (constitutional reform)," Truax told newsmen following a two-hour closed meeting.

Several of the male Republicans attending the session indicated they felt the questions would be difficult to put over.

Luncheon Session

But after the morning session, Gov. Scranton held a luncheon session with the Council of Republican Women in an attempt to win their support for constitutional reform.

Following the session the GOP women—generally counted politically among the extreme wing of the GOP—indicated they were cool to the idea.

"We had an informal exchange of ideas," (with Scranton), said Mrs. Samuel L. Veitch, Villanova, president of the council.

Asked if the council would adopt a policy in support of the constitutional questions, Mrs. Veitch said:

"We're not adopting a policy."

The Republican men indicated they expected trouble on the questions, but at the same time said they planned to go along with the governor's effort.

Andrew Gleason, Cambria County Republican leader, declared: "My feeling is the constitutional convention question is in big trouble."

Truax said discussions of the convention question went over the possibility of a graduated income tax "as a thing we will have to overcome" if the convention question is to be approved.

The present constitution bans graduated taxes.

No Formal Position

Truax said the GOP has taken no formal position opposing such a clause in any new constitution, but he assumed that any GOP convention delegate candidates—should the convention be approved—would run on a platform opposed to such a levy.

Truax said opposition to the bond issue question—the so-called Project 70—was negligible.

But Sen. M. Harvey Taylor, Senate president pro tempore and a party power, contended: "I feel a lot of people will be voting no on a proposal to spend that kind of money."

In other action at the Executive Committee meeting, the group unanimously adopted a resolution attacking legislative Democrats for blocking appropriations to pay for such things as community hospitals and institutions.

The GOP "condemned and censured" the Democratic leadership for its display of fiscal irresponsibility, utter neglect and disregard of the welfare of the citizens of our state.

Church Spokesman

The Rev. Donald G. Huston of the First Presbyterian Church of Lower Merion, Gladwynne, spokesman for the ministers, told the news conference the group wants the Governor to establish liaison between the state commission on human relations and the state police.

"It's clear from Folcroft," he said, "that the left hand didn't know what the right hand was doing."

The Rev. J. Frederick McKirachan, Catasauqua, chairman of the commission on religion and race of the church's Pennsylvania synod, added that the group was "not here as negative critics, but as concerned citizens of the commonwealth."

In protecting human dignity, he said, "the church will be inflexible."

McKirachan also sent a letter to Scranton appealing to him "to map a careful strategy for information and for the enforcement of the law."

His letter echoed the complaints of the ministers about "the inadequate protection and supervision rendered by responsible law enforcement agencies."

Helmeted Troopers Keep Negroes Out

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—An unyielding Gov. George Wallace kept Negroes out of white schools in three Alabama cities Monday, and promptly encountered court retaliation and talk of possible intervention by President Kennedy.

Wallace sent helmeted state troopers to five schools ordered integrated in Birmingham, Mobile and Tuskegee, and kept Negroes out while permitting white students to go to class on schedule.

But at a fourth major city, Huntsville, the governor stood aside and, without explanation, allowed three schools to integrate.

JFK In Washington

Kennedy said in Washington that he would do whatever is necessary to see that the federal court desegregation orders, which led to the new crisis are carried out.

The President said he was still hopeful that Wallace would allow the local communities to meet their responsibilities. School boards in the three cities have agreed to comply with the integration decrees.

Kennedy said he will step in "only if Gov. Wallace compels it."

In the past—at Little Rock, Ark., the University of Mississippi, and the University of Alabama—the President has used troops to enforce the court orders.

After state troopers refused Monday to permit integration, Negro attorneys went promptly to federal judges at Mobile and Birmingham, seeking court orders to stop Wallace from interfering.

Dist. Judge Daniel H. Thomas at Mobile granted a temporary restraining order prohibiting the governor from further intervention at the one school involved there. But Judge Seymour Lynne refused to issue a similar order in Birmingham without a hearing. He set it for Thursday.

Negro attorneys said they

Wallace Ordered To Bow

WASHINGTON (AP)—Five federal judges have ordered Gov. George C. Wallace to allow integration of Alabama public schools to proceed a White House source disclosed Monday night.

The Kennedy administration, therefore, will wait until Tuesday to see whether Wallace complies with the order before deciding on new steps to insure that court-ordered integration goes ahead in Birmingham, Tuskegee and Mobile, it was learned.

The Justice Department, the sources said, sought Monday an order asking that Wallace "and everyone acting on his behalf" be enjoined from interfering with previous acts of the court by which integration was ordered.

Request Was Filed

The Justice Department request was filed in the three federal courts having jurisdiction in Alabama—the Northern, which covers Birmingham; the Middle District, which includes Tuskegee; and the Southern District, which has jurisdiction over Mobile.

The White House source, while refusing to hazard an estimate of what the next move would be if Wallace failed to cooperate, referred reports to an earlier statement by President Kennedy that the government "will do whatever must be done to see that the orders of the court are implemented."

The President had said earlier that the federal government would intervene to desegregate Alabama public schools—but only if Gov. Wallace compels it.

The President accused Wallace of trying to force federal intervention for "personal and political reasons."

Kennedy, it was learned, left his White House office for his living quarters about 8:30 p.m. EDT Monday night but remained in telephone contact with his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

"We will, therefore, now wait until tomorrow (Tuesday) morning to see if Governor Wallace and other of Alabama officials comply with the order," the White House source said.

Sen. Dirksen Gives Backing To Nuclear Test Ban Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican Senate leader Everett M. Dirksen threw the weight of his prestige behind the limited nuclear test ban treaty as debate opened Monday on ratification of the pact.

The Illinois senator also revealed that President Kennedy will send the Senate a letter in a day or two giving "unqualified assurances" that the pact will not mean any relaxation in U.S. security measures.

Dirksen's actions, with support from some other Republicans, buoyed administration hopes for solid bipartisan backing for the treaty despite opposition to it by some influential Southern Democrats on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The GOP leader revealed his stand as he emerged from a 45-minute White House discussion of the treaty with President Kennedy, Senate Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Shortly afterward, the show-down debate was opened by chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He strongly urged ratification in a lengthy speech frequently interrupted by questions.

The debate is expected to run for about two weeks before the final vote in which two-thirds of those voting must approve the treaty if it is to be ratified.

Fulbright said the treaty will not of itself break "the fatal cycle of fear and armaments and greater fear and finally war."

But he said it could "in some small measure mitigate the fears and suspicions of the cold war and perhaps in time lead to further measures of limited accommodation."

Dirksen indicated he thinks "unqualified assurances" by Kennedy may do away with any necessity of the Senate adopting any "understanding."

One subject discussed at the White House, he said, was the demand by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., that effectiveness of the treaty be postponed until Russia withdraws all nuclear missiles and troops from Cuba and permits on-site inspection to prove this has been done.

Dirksen said he does not think Goldwater's proposal is germane to the treaty and added:

"I could not go along with Barry's proposal. To me, it would be a confession of weakness. It would be saying 'We can't deal with Castro, therefore we'll get Uncle Nikita to deal with him.'"

As the debate got rolling, the Senate preparedness subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee made public a report signed by six of its seven members asserting that Russia has surpassed the United States in development of big bombs. It said the Russians may possess superior knowledge of antisubmarine programs and that under the treaty they may draw ahead in low yield weapon technology.

The report said the disadvantages "in our judgment, are not outweighed or counter-balanced by the claimed military advantages."

A dissenting view calling the subcommittee's conclusions "unduly pessimistic" was issued by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., chairman of the Conference of All Republican Senators. He said he will support the treaty.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., signed the report, he said, on the ground he considered its factual data correct. But he, too, included a statement calling the report "overly pessimistic" and repeating that he will vote for the treaty.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, another signer, listed 16 questions she wants answered before she makes up her mind on how to vote. She said she wants to be convinced "that the paramount issue of our national safety and security will not be put in jeopardy."

Discuss Racial Problem

State Police Head Meets With Clergy

HARRISBURG (AP)—A group of Presbyterian clergymen met with State Police Commissioner E. Wilson Purdy on Monday to discuss means of avoiding future racial disturbances similar to events at Folcroft over the Labor day weekend.

The meeting was set up after the group sent a telegram to Gov. Scranton complaining that state police protection was "grossly inadequate" in the early stages of the rioting. The incident was triggered by a Negro family moving into the previously all-white Delmar Village section of the Delaware county borough.

The 11 clergymen met privately for an hour and 40 minutes with Purdy, three state police officers and William Johnson, assistant secretary to the Governor.

General Reaction

Their general reaction was that they had received gratifying reassurances from the commission that "Folcrofts" would be avoided in the future.

They were divided, however, whether the state should prosecute identifiable ringleaders of the disturbances.

Purdy, in a 50-minute news conference, defended his force against the criticisms of the clergymen.

He was backed by Johnson, on behalf of the Governor.

"We of course, take exception to that (charge of inadequate protection)," Purdy said. "We feel the area was protected."

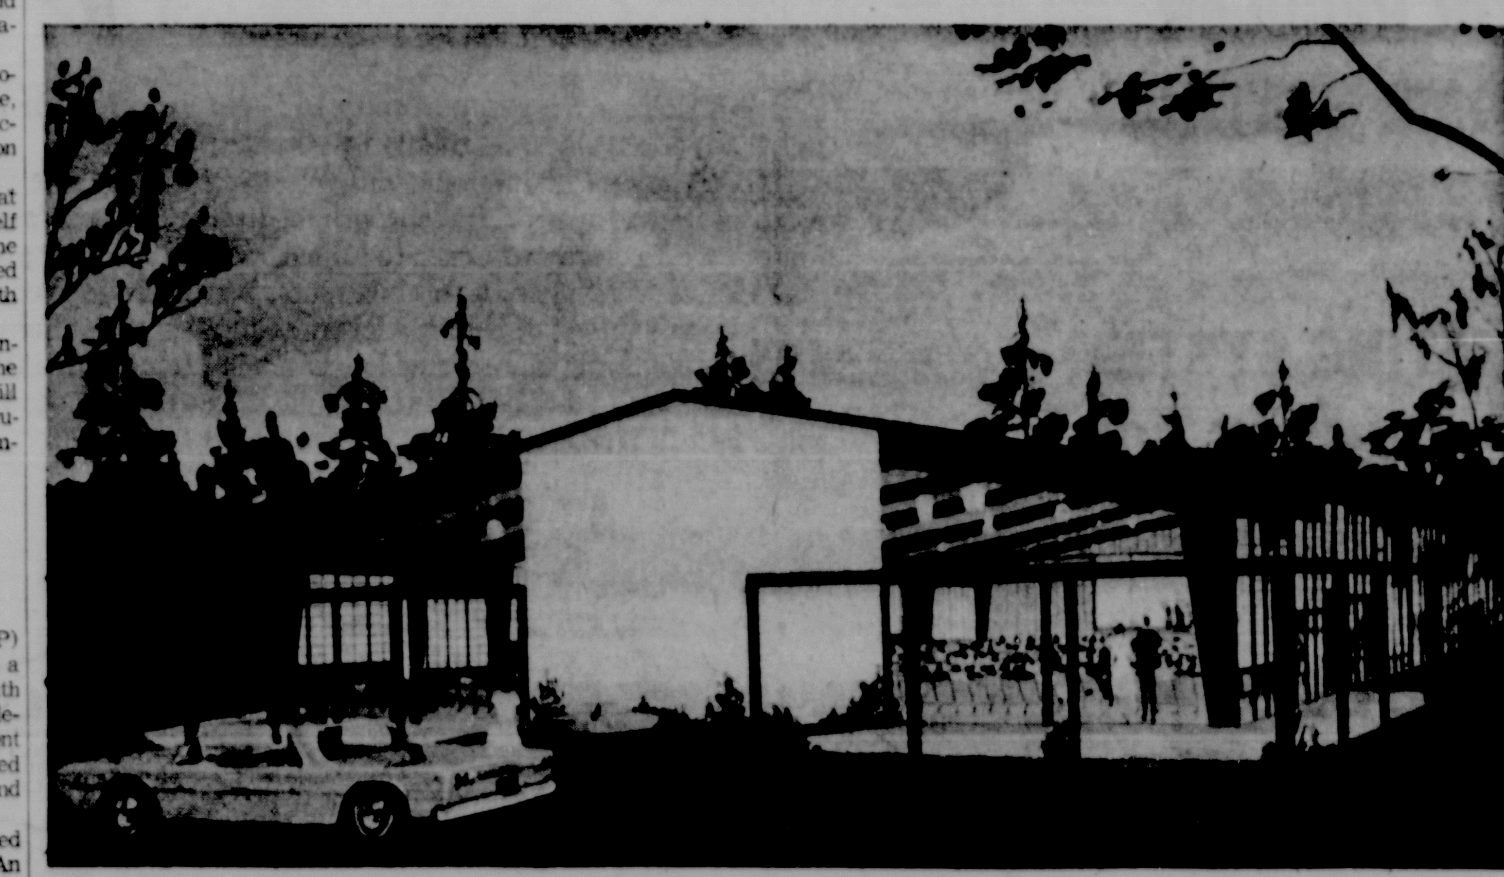

"Initially, we did not have adequate manpower to take positive action to clear the group out without rising the possibility that our forces would be overrun, with the risk of serious damage being done."

"We had been assigned for Labor day traffic; we had a large force on duty at Shepton (mine)

Art Center Drive To Be Launched

THIS IS AN ARTISTS' conception of the proposed new $100,000 art center planned for erection by the Pocono Art Center. The main body of the building will house a 300 seat auditorium to be used for staging all types of cultural and artistic programs. The art center will be a civic endeavor spearheaded by the Pocono Art Center.

STROUDSBURG — Marcia Clapp DeRocco, director of the Pocono Art Center, said yesterday her group will launch a $400,000 drive to finance the building of an art and cultural center to be located in the area of the Stroudsburgs.

The art center will include a 300 seat auditorium for the staging of chamber and orchestral concerts, films, lectures and repertory theater.

Resident studios will be built, according to Mrs. Clapp, "So adults searching for leisure activities or development of latent talent may participate in our workshops and receive expert guidance from professional artists and craftsmen."

Plans call for a nursery to provide for the care of children whose parents are attending workshops.

The Center also made public the fact that the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra will open its Friday rehearsal free of charge to high school students.

Eugene Ormandy expressed his desire to cooperate as much as possible with the Center.

Mrs. DeRocco also said that tickets for the concert have been selling at a brisk pace and that only 25 tickets remain. The setting for the concert will be the auditorium in East Stroudsburg High School with a seating capacity of 1,100.

Western Wayne Reads The Bible

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The Supreme court notwithstanding, 1,200 pupils of the Western Wayne Joint Schools are hearing Bible verses and reciting the Lord's Prayer each morning.

The joint board's decision to go ahead with Scripture reading and prayer recitation was disclosed by Supervising Principal Edgar F. Jenkins.

It was the first reported incident in northeastern Pennsylvania where school officials declined to observe the high tribunal's ban on religious exercises in public schools.

Western Wayne Jointure has high school at Lake Ariel and Waymart, and elementary schools at Canaan, Waymart, Aldenville and Lake Ariel. All are in Wayne County.

Reading of 10 Bible verses and recitation of the Lord's Prayer began last Tuesday when classes resumed for the 1963-64 school year, Jenkins said.

The opening exercises also include the Salute to the Flag.

Leaking Acid Closes Highway

GREENCASTLE, Pa. (AP) — A leaking chemical drum one of 61 loaded on a tractor-trailer, forced the closing of interstate Route 81 between Greencastle and the Maryland state line Sunday night.

The road was opened Monday morning after three employees of the Smith Transfer Co. of Staunton, Va., successfully transferred the drums, each containing 50 gallons, to a second tractor trailer.

The employees could not determine what type of chemical was contained in the drums, but said it apparently was of an acid nature.

The interstate route was closed to traffic when Enoch J. Brooks Jr., 38, of Stuart Draft, Va., halted his rig after he noticed chemical fumes filtering into his cab.

He opened the doors to the truck to check the cargo and the leading fumes quickly dissipated through the area. Brooks temporarily was felled by the fumes, state police said.

Burglary Leads To Murder

DUBOIS, Pa. (AP) — A burglary led to the death of a 12-year-old Dubois R.D. 2 boy, state police said Monday.

The body of Eugene Conway was found in the bathroom of his home Saturday night. He had been shot in the back and the head.

Kenneth Aljoe, also of Dubois R.D. 2, was arrested Sunday on a murder charge. He is scheduled for a hearing later in the week.

Police said two rifles, $14 in cash and some change were taken from the Conway home. The weapons and some of the money were found nearby, they said.

GOP To Clean State Payroll

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Republican leaders here say they are striving to rid the state payroll of all active Democratic party workers before the November election.

"We hope to have all of them out," said William A. Meehan, who is in charge of the local GOP's state patronage. "We want to help our party workers, not theirs."

Meehan said Saturday that over 500 jobs have been given to Philadelphia Republican workers since the party took over the state administration last January.

Forty of the city's 60 Republican ward leaders have gone to work for the state. Eleven Democratic ward leaders who had held appointive posts in the state have been fired along with some 600 Philadelphia Democratic committeemen and women.

Meehan estimated that there remained 400 Philadelphia Democrats in the state administration.

Deaths Ruled Accidental

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — The deaths of a Lehigh County mother and her small daughter whose bodies were found in a farm pond, have been ruled accidental drownings.

The victims, Mrs. Mae Walton, 38, of Coopersburg and her daughter, Donna, six, were found in a pond near their home Friday by children returning from school.

Mass Polio Shots Planned

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Health officials in Philadelphia and suburban counties in Pennsylvania and New Jersey will launch a mass polio immunization program Sept. 22. Oral vaccine will be used. Altogether, officials hope to reach more than 3.5 million persons in Philadelphia, Bucks, Delaware and Montgomery counties in Pennsylvania and Camden, Cumberland, Gloucester and Salem counties in New Jersey.

Pennsylvania Has Strict Laws On Discrimination

Second Of A Series

By GILBERT MURRAY
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Pennsylvania has strong laws concerning the major areas of discrimination. All civil rights laws in Pennsylvania have been incorporated under the omnibus Human Relations Act.

Included in the Human Relations Act is the Fair Housing Practices provision (FHP). The FHP regulates discriminatory practices in the buying, selling, renting and financing of all types of real estate. It is a law that has to be read closely to be understood.

To understand the provisions of the FHP you have to first be familiar with the terms of the act and their definitions. The most important terms to be known are:

Terms Defined

(a) "Housing accommodations" shall include any vacant land offered for sale or lease for the construction of buildings which are to be used or occupied as living quarters and shall not include any vacant land offered exclusively for sale or lease for the construction of buildings to be used for the manufacture, distribution or sale of commercial products or for other similar business purposes.

(b) "Commercial housing" shall include cooperative apartment houses containing three or more separate living quarters occupied or intended to be occupied by individuals or families living independently of each other.

les living independently of each other.

(c) "Personal residence" shall include any semi-detached house, duplex house or twin house in which the owner thereof maintains a bona fide residence for himself and any members of his family forming his household. It shall not include any building containing three or more separate living quarters occupied or intended to be occupied by individuals or families living independently of each other, whether or not the owner thereof maintains a bona fide residence therein. Any building or structure occupied and used by the owner thereof shall lose its identity as a "personal residence" when the owner thereof moves out of the said building and no longer uses it as a bona fide residence for himself or any members of his family forming his household.

Basis Of Law

The basis of the law is contained in regulation 301 and reads as follows:

"It shall be an unlawful discriminatory practice for any person, because of the race, color, religious creed, ancestry or national origin of any individual applying for the purchase or rent of commercial housing."

"(a) to offer or impose any different or special terms or conditions in connection with the selling or leasing of any commercial housing."

"(b) to offer or impose any different or special terms and conditions in connection with the loan of money for the acquisition, construction, rehabilitation, repair or maintenance of commercial housing."

"(c) to publish, circulate, issue, display, post or mail, directly or indirectly, any written or printed communication, notice or advertisement, or otherwise make known that any of the accommodations, advantages, facilities or privileges offered by any real estate firm, broker, agent, salesman, bank, mortgage company or other financial or lending institution or any individual employed by any of them shall be refused, withheld or denied any person because of his race, color, etc."

"(d) to advertise, publish or circulate, or to cause to be published or circulated any statement which expresses, directly or indirectly, any limitation or discrimination relating to the selling or leasing of any commercial housing based upon race, color, etc. The use of the language "For Colored" "Gentile Only," "For White Only," "Restricted," and similar expressions shall constitute a violation of the Pennsylvania Human Relations Act. It shall likewise be unlawful for any person to indicate in any advertising that he is offering for sale or lease housing which is exempt from the provisions of the Law."

"(e) to make or keep any record or use any form of application containing questions concerning race, color, etc., in connection with the selling or leasing of any commercial housing. The request for photographs of persons shall be considered a violation of this Regulation. Likewise, the use of photographs, either of persons, buildings or things, for the purpose of revealing the race, color, etc., of the persons to occupy the commercial housing being offered for sale or rent shall be considered a violation of this Regulation.

Exemptions Listed

Exemptions to the Law are incorporated in Regulation 302 and are:

Exemptions other than "Personal Residences." The exemption in favor of religious, charitable, educational, private and fraternal organizations shall apply only where the commercial housing being offered for sale or rent by such organizations will be used to promote the religious principles or the aims, purposes or fraternal principles for which such organizations were established.

Exemption of "Personal Residences." The exemption of "personal residences" shall not be applicable to real estate firms, brokers, agents, salesmen or any individual employed by any of them when acting on behalf of an owner of a "personal residence," where the owner of such residence directs that it shall be sold or leased without regard to the applicants' race, color, etc.

Threatening and intimidating behavior is contained in Regulation 303 of the Act and read as follows:

Harassment or intimidation of prospective owners, occupants or users of housing accommodations. In any case where an owner or a prospective owner, occupant or user of housing accommodations, or the agent, real estate broker or representative of any of them, is intimidated, harassed or threatened by individuals or groups because of the race, color, etc., of said owner or prospective owner, occupant or user, and such harassment, intimidation or threats will tend to prevent said owner, prospective owner, occupant or user from taking peaceful possession of the housing accommodations which he has purchased or rented or from thereafter enjoying peaceful possession thereof the Commission shall forth-

Federation Honors Depot Fire Chief

TOBYHANNA—James H. Oakley, Tobyhanna Army Depot's fire chief, has been named "Fireman of the Year" by Northeastern Pennsylvania's Volunteer Firemen's Federation.

The award, first of its type made by the federation, was presented last weekend in Hancock, N. Y., at the group's 33rd annual convention. Along with the citation went a gold-filled wrist watch, a gift of the A. I. Gross family of Scranton.

Oakley is a past president of the federation and a director of its fire school since 1961. He has been continuously associated with area fire companies since the age of six, when he was appointed mascot of the Dickson City Volunteer Fire Company, of which his father, the late James A. Oakley, was chief.

As chief of the Tobyhanna depot company, Oakley heads a 15-man crew in around-the-clock fire protection of the 1400-acre base. The depot fire unit is also a member of the Pocono Mountains Mutual Aid Plan and frequently helps fight area fires.

Born in Dickson City, Oakley now lives in Tobyhanna with his wife, the former Julia Puluka of that town.

Witnesses Close Three-Day Conference At Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM — What is man's origin? How long has he been on earth? Why is he on earth? Where is he going? These questions were answered to the satisfaction of 138 delegates in an address given by David J. Thomas, district supervisor of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, Sunday. This lecture, "The Bible Triumphs in a Scientific World," climaxed the three-day convention of Jehovah's Witnesses held at the Broughal School Building in Bethlehem.

Thomas pointed out the various avenues that people pursue in quest of the answers to these questions. He said, "Many have looked to the philosophies of men, others turn to the religious leaders, still others say there is no positive answer. Another group, the atheists, conclude that life started without a creator and hence all life on earth today is the result of the evolutionary process."

The speaker continued by asking the question, "Is it true that the findings of proved science nullify the Bible's account of the origin of life?" He stressed the fact that "many quickly answer, 'yes.' But before dismissing the matter, ask yourself these questions: On what have I based my answer? Have I carefully analyzed the facts, or have I drawn conclusions on unproved theories, hearsay or prejudice? What do I really know about the Bible's account of man's origin when put to the test of scientific findings?"

"True science completely harmonizes with the Bible on such topics as the origin of life and the time and place of man's beginning," he emphasized.

Stettler said there are only 125 tickets for sale and most of them have been sold. He suggested anyone interested in getting a last minute ticket to telephone Harry Mullins at 421-3666 or Kresge Drug Store at 421-0710.

Engineer Due At Quarry To Assist Recovery Attempt

WIND GAP—State Rep. Gus P. Verona of Pen Argil said last night that Albert Roma, general superintendent of Number One Construction Co., West Pittston, and one of the engineering experts in the rescue team of David Fellin and Henry Thorne from the Shepton Mine cave-in last month, will join the volunteer workers at the Penn-Bangor quarry in Wind Gap as they search for the body of Robert LeMurray, 16, of Elizabeth, N.J., who drowned in the quarry on Aug. 18.

Verona added that Roma is due at the quarry today to aid in the supervision of the work.

Chief of Wind Gap Police Leo Reinhardt issued a call last week for an expert to help since the recovery operation is now at the danger point due to the water level being lowered about 125 feet from the quarry edge.

Divers from the Telford Diving Unit, Telford, Pa., were on the scene last night, working to eliminate a diver hazard on the bottom of the quarry.

Wire ropes used when the quarry was in operation lay on the bottom and on several occasions have fouled up the safety and air lines of the divers.

Pumps on a floating barge continued to pump water from the quarry. They have been operating on a 24-hour basis, with shut-downs only for repairs and maintenance as required, for more than two weeks.

BANGOR — Frederick W. Baker, manager of Bangor Water Co., announced last night that a ban on the use of all outside hoses becomes effective this morning.

The ban also includes a request of all industries in the area to curtail use of water in their operation by one-third the amount regularly used each day.

Baker said, "The reason for the ban is to build up a storage capacity in the reservoir to a satisfactory level for emergency use. The reservoir has been depleted because of a serious break in a water main last month, above normal use of water, and severe drought."

Doctors Say Hormones Make Skin Look Younger Safely

NEW YORK (Special)—A leading dermatologist and his assistants have conducted a "half-woman" test that proves conclusively estrogenic hormones make skin look younger, smooth dry-skin wrinkles, often fade "old-age" skin discolorations.

A preparation containing female hormones was applied to one side of the face and neck and to one hand of 50 middle-aged women. A similar formula containing no hormones was used on the other side. It was quickly apparent that the side treated with hormones looked better. At the end of the test in all but two cases, skin lines were definitely less noticeable, complexion was softer, smoother, fresher. There was no local irritation in any case; examination revealed absolutely no systemic effects. The hormones had beautified effectively and safely.

In an effort to speed up hormones' beautifying action, a trustworthy 50-year-old laboratory developed a fluid formula called HORMONEX Beauty Serum. This laboratory conducted a test on 15,000 women

The Conservationist

On September 25, President Kennedy is scheduled to visit the small village of Milford in Pike County to dedicate the Pinchot Institute of Conservation. It will be quite a day for the community to our north.

However, despite the importance of the personage making the dedication, we feel that the people of northeastern Pennsylvania should be even more honored by the name and memory of Gifford Pinchot, for whom the institute is named.

Nationally, Pinchot, who was twice Governor of Pennsylvania and a close friend of President Theodore Roosevelt, has been held in high esteem as the first National Forester. At various times, he has been designated as the father of forestry and the founder of conservation in the United States. In the northwest, there is a national forest named in his honor.

To those of us in northeastern Pennsylvania, the memory of Gifford Pinchot is even warmer. He was a friend and neighbor to many of us, and always had time to stop off for a chat.

It is indeed fitting that his home, Grey Towers, which overlooks Milford, has been selected as the site for a conservation center which will prepare and disseminate information on conservation, as well as train personnel for work in this field.

On this same site, more than half a century ago, was founded the first forestry school in the United States. This school, operated by Yale University on the Pinchot estate, trained the early conservationists, and this training resulted in the great forest preserves which our nation possesses today.

Along with the national scope of Pinchot's work, our own Poconos area will be forever in his debt. It was his leadership that nurtured the respect and love we have for our beautiful woodlands, which for years have been famous for their natural beauty.

The new institute is a fitting memorial to Gifford Pinchot—conservationist, statesman, neighbor and friend.

Gross National Product

Statistics about average family income don't pay the food bill, but the experts say that average family income in America (from all sources) is $7,100 and will rise to $9,300 in ten years.

"We'll believe it when we see it in the pay check."

In the meantime, listen to the enthusiastic predictions of the Center for Economic Projections of the National Planning Association for 1973:

A gross national product of $904 billion, a 63 per cent increase over last year's $553.9 billion; average family income of $9,300; and unemployment down to four per cent despite an increase of 15 million in the work force.

Government deficits will still be with us.

The center predicts that total state, local and federal tax revenues will rise from 1962's $158.1 billion to about $275 billion, while government spending will jump from $160.6 billion to $282.8 billion—still a few billions ahead of government revenues.

Only the unskilled worker will not participate in this golden age of 1973. He will suffer from the increasingly complicated technological advances of business and industry.

But everyone else can sit back and enjoy that $904 billion gross national product and look for that $9,300 average family income.

Comment Of The Day

"We have no malice towards those who damaged the house. All we desire is to show good will toward others and for that goodwill to be returned toward us."

—Horace Baker, 26, head of the first Negro family to move into a white Philadelphia suburban community in Folcroft, Pa.

Demonstrators did an estimated $2,- 200 damage to their $11,200 house purchased from the Veterans Administration. They ripped out plumbing, destroyed the water heater, damaged the furnace, smashed windows with rocks, started a fire with a homemade bomb, and threw garbage into the house.

Baker made his "no malice" comment after community and charitable groups donated $1,491 to help repair the house.

Barry Goldwater

Washington—One of the qualities that make Sen. Barry Goldwater so formidable in the political arena is his quick and delightful sense of humor. Behind those black hornrimmed spectacles are twinkling eyes that seldom miss a bet.

An idea of how fast the reputedly solemn rightwing Republican can rise with the risibles was demonstrated the other day in all places—the rose garden at the White House. The Arizonaan isn't exactly what might be described as a habitué of Jackie Kennedy's Rose garden, but there was a nonpolitical reason for his presence on this occasion.

In addition to being a reservist in the ranks of those holding their presidential aspirations in reserve, Sen. Goldwater is a reservist Major General in the Air Force. He showed up at the White House to witness President Kennedy award the Distinguished Service Medal to Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell Jr., retiring commander of the Pacific Air Force.

Thirty Days Hath September . . . !

The Pennsylvania Story

Pegging Responsibility

By Mason Delmon

HARRISBURG — Legislative irresponsibility (part one).

There can be little doubt that the now defunct 1963 Legislature will go down as somewhat of a classic illustration of "legislative irresponsibility" — the appellation lawmakers so violently detest hearing (perhaps because in too many cases it is a flat truism).

Over the years Pennsylvania's legislative brethren have preened their feathers to a bright hue — one might say a "distinctive lustre", brushed with a "3000 annual recompense, a satisfying and comfortable retirement program when they're booted out of office, special parking stalls on Capitol Hill, a virtual take-over of the Main Capitol Building, a ten-cent-a-mile mileage reimbursement token, special license plates plush office wastebaskets ($40 buckets no less) and similar emoluments.

For this the 230 members of the Legislature meet a couple of months a year "to carry on year's legislative festive board gathering, lasted seven months — actually 78 legislative days for the House of Representatives and 73 for the Senate).

All of this could perhaps be forgiven in one manner or another, or semi-justified, if the lawmaking brethren could or would really meet their responsibilities to the hilt—rather than flapping somewhat aimlessly and then disbanding in a pother of indecision, political blather and dangling inaction.

To illustrate the point: — Every session there is the matter of providing funds for various and sundry non-state owned facilities — state aided facilities, such as colleges, universities and some 180 local community hospitals.

The important point is that this was nothing "new" for the 1963 session; this state aid has become just as much as accepted part and parcel of routine state government responsibility pattern as appropriating a modest sum for the maintenance of the Complaner Indian Reservation in Warren County.

For the aforementioned State aided institutions this financial aid is as much a pattern of their yearly fiscal living as the beds they have in their hospital rooms and the rooms the colleges and universities have in their dormitories. It's actually small pittance from the state as a whole for yeoman services these facilities perform.

This year this state aid was projected at around $37 million.

Then the 1963 Legislature too-sed itself in the graveyard — went into final adjournment — for about the first time in history without clearing this state aid.

Net results: these already hard-pressed facilities now are faced with scratching for funds they don't have, with the added borrowing route the only road left open.

For example, Penn State's President Eric A. Walker the other day estimated that the institution would have to borrow perhaps as much as $10,000,000 by the end of the year—and you don't borrow that kind of money for a few pence.

Community hospitals throughout the state in the not too distant future also will begin to feel the pinch-off created by the adjourned 1963 Legislature.

Theoretically of course the problem can be solved by the Governor calling a special session, or including the subject in a special session call (which in all probability is what will happen)—but the important point is that any such gubernatorial action marks the executive branch of the government as the responsible agency when by constitutional decree it is exclusively the legislative branch's responsibility!

Defends Anti-Dam Status

Editor, The Daily Record:

The communication in the Record smearing the activities of the Anti-Dam Committee, if I may express an opinion, is hogwash of non sequiturs and nonsense. It includes comment on recreation, calls our opposition politically inspired, says the dam would have saved lives in the flood, throws in a plug for brotherly love and deprecates hatred.

That recreation areas are no novelty: Agreed. There are few of them comparable to the Poconos. What we have here is doing splendidly and will continue to do so without Tocks just as it has always done.

If we do have Tocks (Heaven forbid, I do not believe there will be any more jobs available for local residents, because everybody and his uncle and the latter's relatives will flock in, freezing out those who are here.

This also applies to the established businesses; they will suffer because of newcomers entering the field. This can be confirmed by developments elsewhere under similar conditions. As things are, people who want work can get it; try hiring a houseworker between May and September!

Opposition is political: Here we have a real sneaker-dinner. Exactly what may be our political affiliations should be elucidated. We contend (and have said so) that taking private property (land) away from people against their wills is a Communist tactic. Ipso facto, that makes us anti-Communist. We are proud of it. Apparently, since pro-damners favor that procedure, what is their position in regards to Communism? (If this gives a cork screw twist to the matter, I refer you again to the sneaky letter).

Lives would have been saved: Rats! If the dam had been there in 1955, more lives would have been lost on the Delaware because the waters would have been restricted in their outflow (they rose too quickly) and the flood waters would have backed up even higher.

Bushkill Creek in front of our house rose over twenty feet and stopped just short of sweeping our home away. We had a high level of water inside the house and sustained heavy damage.

Dams at the heads of the Delaware will not help.

And now the final non sequiturs; brotherhood and hatred: What they have to do with Tocks is a mystery. It is a sign of brotherhood to try to force people, who have had Delaware valley land in their families for up to 250 years, to give away or to sell that land? Conversely, if we anti-damners fight back, is that a sign of hatred?

I refer to my original premise: It is my belief (an allegation) that your correspondent blats blatant nonsense.

Very truly yours, HENRY R. SCHMITZER, Anti-Dam Committee

The Allen-Scott Report

Gold Reserves

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — With direct Federal Reserve cooperation, the Kennedy administration is set to resort to a little-known emergency power in the event the continuing heavy drain of gold reserves slashes the total below the 25 per cent required for currency coverage.

When the country's gold reserves sink below the $12.3 billion minimum necessary for currency backing, the Reserve Board will suspend this statutory provision.

This extraordinary authority is included in the same decades-old law that established the 25 per cent currency coverage. The Reserve Board has never invoked it.

But Reserve Chairman William McChesney Martin has agreed to do so if and when this grave monetary crisis arises.

Purpose of this unprecedented action would be to make good the President's proclaimed intention to continue a "free gold" policy: that is, delivering gold for dollars on the demand of foreign creditors. He has declared that our entire gold reserves are available to back up the dollar in this manner.

Treasury Secretary Dillon has disclosed the Reserve Board's unannounced intention to congressional leader, with jurisdiction over the President's recently-submitted elaborate program to cope with the increasingly serious balance-of-payments deficit problem—of which the persistent large loss of gold reserves is a key consequence.

Since 1958, the payments deficit has averaged around $3.5 billion a year. In 1960 it soared to $3.9 billion; this year it is running around $3.2 billion.

In an effort to plug the menacing gold drain, the President proposes to — the purchase of foreign securities; in effect, a "sales tax" on investments abroad. The Ways and Means Committee will act on this shortly.

What Dillon Said—The — Reserve Board's highly significant position was revealed by Dillon at a meeting with the Joint Economic Committee, headed by Senator Paul Douglas, D-Ill. The committee is studying the complex balance-of-payments - deficit issue, and Dillon was closely questioned about administration measures to deal with it, particularly the continuing evaporation of the gold reserves.

Since 1962, they have plummeted from $23.2 billion to $15.4 billion. That leaves only $3.3 billion (over the $12.3 billion minimum) for meeting potential foreign claims of more than $22 billion.

The bulk of this $7.6 billion loss in gold has gone to France, West Germany, Italy, Japan and other Western countries that have benefited enormously from U. S. economic and military aid.

During this period, U. S. foreign aid expenditures have been more than $45 billion.

If the gold outflow continues at the rate it has in the past five years (around $1 billion a year), the reserves will sink below the required 25 per cent currency coverage by 1966-67.

Senator Jack Miller, R-Iowa, asked Dillon what happens then. "You state that currency devaluation is out of the question," said Miller. "It seems to me that if we continue at the rate we are going, within a matter of two or three years we won't have any free gold to deliver in payment of debts to foreign creditors. In that event, won't we have to devalue the dollar in the world market because we won't be able to deliver gold when it's demanded?"

This contention was flatly rejected by Dillon. The Treasury head emphatically asserted that devaluation of the dollar is wholly out of the question.

"While our laws require a 25 per cent cover for our currency in Federal Reserve deposits," declared Dillon, "our laws also provide that the Federal Reserve System in time of emergency has the right, on its own recognition, to waive that requirement and to allow the sale of gold to continue."

"The chairman of the Federal Reserve has stated that if the situation should arise, it would be his intention to make use of the authority."

"The chairman has pointed out the existence of this authority. So this is not to try to minimize the seriousness of the situation, but merely to point out that there is no particular single point at which suddenly we would not be able to give gold to foreign countries if they so desire. We would still be able to do it even though it would require this waiver. That is the reason for the President's statement in February 1961, when he declared that our entire gold stock is available to back up the dollar."

"Would this impair the value of the dollar on the gold market?" continued Senator Miller.

"No, I don't think it would," replied Dillon. "What would impair the value of the dollar would be failure to live up to our commitment to deliver gold for dollars."

"And the fact there would be much less gold backing up our currency, wouldn't that impair the value of the dollar?" asked Miller.

"No," asserted Dillon. "I think the fact that our gold supply is smaller one year than the year before means that we are less strong. If we got down to that point, we would be less strong, and that would be a situation that would not be as good as it is now. It would be unfortunate. But the mere fact of hitting that particular point would not, I think, internationally have any effect."

"It probably would have more effect at home where people would be disturbed because of the invoking of that currency coverage waiver."

Speaking Of Your Health:

Card-Playing Tensions

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The quiet, gentle, relaxed quartet of bridge players light their after-dinner cigars and settle down in water contentment to shuffle and distribute the cards. Tranquility and harmony prevail—that is, until the first bid is made.

Then, suddenly, and with an increasing crescendo, the hormones and adrenalin begin to accumulate and circulate in the bloodstream.

Sudden Change

Soon the heart rate becomes more rapid and the blood pressure rises. Tempers may flare and erupt explosively when a partner makes the first error in bidding. And, of course, only partners ever make mistakes.

Dr. Milton Ende of Virginia, himself a bridge expert, became interested in the physical and psychological changes that might occur during routine games of social and tournament bridge. With scientific orderliness, he performed many tests on the heart, blood pressure and pulse rate. Electrocardiograms were taken before, during and after play.

Results Of Study

He found that the heart beat and the pulse rate fluctuated and increased, especially during exciting moments of the game. He found no perceptible changes in the electrocardiogram, which should be comforting to chronic bridge players.

He did find definite changes in the blood pressure, especially during critical periods of the game.

An interesting and rather characteristic psychological observation was the sleeplessness that followed concentrated tournament play. Apparently, exhilaration and personal elation-ment for errors in judgment interfered with restful sleep.

When playing gin rummy, casino or even that gentle game of "peace and patience", heed the advice of your opponents when they say, "Don't get excited! Watch your blood pressure!"

Actually, the studies of Dr. Ende should convince us that bridge is anything but a hazardous game.

NEW "SLEEP MACHINE"

Now hear this if you suffer from insomnia.

An enterprising engineer, named Robert Lessnerre of Toulouse, France, has devised a tiny machine that is reported to be helpful in inducing sleep.

Inspired by the reputed soporific effect of late night television shows, when many people find it so easy to doze off into sound sleep, Mr. Lessnerre has invented a machine that reproduces the sleep-inducing effect of TV.

The machine does not offer Gary Grant or Bette Davis films, but it does feature an ingenious bluish light that rhythmically increases and diminishes in a tempo that is said to soothe respiration and the heartbeat. Thus drowsiness is encouraged.

This electronic device has been tested at a hospital center in Toulouse. Mr. Lessnerre reports that sleep usually follows within five minutes after the "late show" begins.

These columns are designed to relieve your fears about health through a better understanding of your mind and body. All the hopeful new advances in medicine reported here are known to doctors everywhere.

Your individual medical problems should be handled by your own doctor. He knows you best.

Dear Abby

The Bare Facts, Ma'am!

DEAR ABBY: My husband has been wanting to join a nudist colony for a long time. I have been against it. I accompanied him on one trip to the nudist camp and I don't care to go again. I wasn't brought up to run around naked in front of strangers. I am allowed three visits to the camp before it becomes mandatory that I disrobe, too. My husband says I have an evil mind, and that man was much happier when he went around naked and lived with nature in the trees. Should I try to forget my shame and go with him? He can't join unless I do. He is 25 and I am 23. We have a child one year old.

NO NAME PLEASE

DEAR ABBY: There is nothing "evil" about your mind, so don't let him change it. And you can tell your nature-loving hubby that in time we all might be living "with nature" in the trees again — so he should keep his shirt on.

DEAR ABBY: You sure made a big thing out of a little kid swapping one grape. I'm in the grocery business and I wish I had a dime for every person who helped himself to something in my store. Yesterday a woman came in for some bananas. While I was weighing her bananas she was eating my grapes. I caught her in the act, but did I get excited? Certainly not, because I just finished weighing my thumb.

NICK

DEAR ABBY: I hate to go to funerals. Last week a neighbor passed away and my husband wanted me to go to the funeral with him. I refused because (1) I hardly knew the man, (2) I hate to be around grieving folks, (3) I never know what to say. My husband was very an-grateful because he didn't think he ought to go without me. The deceased was a childhood friend of my husband's. My husband went alone, but I still haven't heard the end of it. Was I wrong?

HATES FUNERALS

DEAR HATES: You should have gone. No one LIKES to be "around grieving folks", but the presence of friends who care enough to come is usually a comfort to mourners. You need "say" nothing more at a funeral than, "I'm sorry."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "A DARNED FOOL": The person who is a "darned fool" and KNOWS he's a "darned fool" is no "darned fool." Tell him to shape up or ship out.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 335, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

In case you wondered where everybody was going all dressed up late yesterday afternoon, they were going to a cocktail party given by Modern Bride for the resort owners of the area who are hosts to all their brides and bridegrooms.

It was the first time many of the resort owners have come out of their own busy ballbuckles since the Laurel Blossom Festival, and I must say that all the hectic summer responsibilities doesn't seem to have aged them at all. They looked very well.

And the winter issue of the magazine, usually opened to the story of honeymoons in the Poconos, made us sound pretty good too. But for most of the officers of our clubs, the summer honeymoon is practically over, as everything gets started at once.

Next week, for instance, the Northeast District of the Federation of Women's Clubs and the state Federation of Garden Clubs are both meeting in the Poconos practically simultaneously while the regular schedule of meetings goes on almost unchecked.

Speaking of Garden Clubs, like Charlie the Tuna's girl friend, I never dreamed I'd have an exhibit at a garden club meeting. Mrs. A. Starr Phelps, who spoke to the Portland Garden Club last week and will be speaking at the Bushkill Garden Club this week, called up to ask if she might use something from my property for her talk. Pretty flattering — until it turned out she wanted some of my poison ivy to illustrate what to stay away from. I guess I've got about the handsomest selection of poison ivy there is, which is sort of winning distinction the hard way.

Real distinction goes to Joyce Rutt and Rosemarie Anderson, who have been added to the "Who's Who Among American Women." The honor on Joyce had me baffled temporarily. "Arlene J. Rutt," I said, and I said "Who's Arlene Who's Who?" The J saved me. Don't tell Joyce I told you, she prefers A. Joyce Rutt.

Double Talk Keeps Maternity Staff Watchful

Brantford, Ont. (AP) — It seemed like a possible nightmare situation to the St. Joseph's Hospital maternity staff.

The two Portuguese mothers-to-be were both named Maria Dasilva; it got interesting.

The first names of the two Portuguese fathers-to-be were the same, Jose. The plot thickened.

And when both mothers were delivered of sons, the danger of a chance mixup was abundantly clear.

To avoid an unhappy aftermath, the mothers were kept in separate wards and the infants, as soon as they were born, were name-tagged.

The mothers helped out: 20-year-old Mrs. Dasilva from Brantford named her son Michael. He's her first.

Twenty-one-year-old Mrs. Dasilva of nearby Scotland named her first born Jose. She commented: "There was no fuss, no trouble. Everything went smoothly."

The maternity staff of St. Joseph's Hospital breathed a sigh of relief.

NEW HANDBOOKS, new uniforms, new levels, but the same aims for Girl Scouts mark this week's official change in national program. ## Girl Scout Levels Are New; Girl Scout Laws Continue Stroudsburg—More than 6,800 registered Girl Scouts of the Scranton-Pocono Girl Scout Council are expected to purchase their new handbooks this week, corresponding to the four new age levels in Girl Scouting: Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts.

The new handbooks went on sale yesterday at the council's five permanent agencies. During the week, all handbooks will contain special book plates, indicating that they were acquired during the first week of sale. Girl Scout volunteers will assist some of the sales staff by distributing the book plates. Mrs. Reese, Council President, estimates that more than 5,000 books will be purchased this week.

"We are extremely happy that the Girl Scout organization is able to offer these beautiful books at a price most girls can afford. Trade books of the same quality would sell for much more. Many of the girls in our council have themselves earned the money to buy their new handbooks."

Mrs. Reese explained that the four books represent successive stages in the continuous program for girls, aged 7 through 17.

NEW YORK (AP)—Girl Scouting takes on a new look this week. Four new handbooks, going on sale Monday, introduce a completely rewritten, redeveloped and redesigned Girl Scout program.

This new design, the Girl Scout organization says, is based on a three-year university study and on the latest findings in the field of child psychology and curriculum development.

It provides a program of informal education and recreation for girls from 7 through 17, at four age levels: Brownies, age 7 and 8; Juniors, age 9, 10, 11; Cadettes, age 12, 13, 14; Seniors, age 15, 16, 17.

But, the organization points out, the basic elements of Girl Scouting for its 2.5 million girls and 750,000 adults have not been changed. The fundamental elements remain the same: the promise and laws, service, citizenship, international friendship, troop management, and health and safety—all woven into activities centering around the home, the arts, the out-of-doors.

The handbooks had a prepublication printing of 3½ million. Each handbook was prepared by a team of five working two years. They sell for $1 a copy.

Sharing Truths
d. To share whenever it's necessary the humility of the failures and disappointments you hide from the rest of the world?

e. To gripe and throw around complaints because you have to let off steam you can only let off to a spouse?

f. To tirelessly air prejudices you can only air at home?

These less than perfect frailties aren't the girders of the marriage job. But they are the human elements that give marriage its comfort and heart, provided you balance this letting-down with real strength.

So, despite our celebrity's ideas, we'll still promote the wedding march and the opportunities of one job that says you can let down!

Mrs. Anderson, Joyce Rutt In 'Who's Who'

Two outstanding women from the Stroudsburg area have made their first appearance in "Who's Who of American Women," the editors of the new third edition announced.

Miss A. Joyce Rutt, secretary of the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. of 626 Bryant St., Stroudsburg, and Rosemarie Anderson of Bowson Hill Road, Stroud Twp., who teaches French in the elementary school at the Campus Laboratory School at the college, are among the 8,800 women to be listed for the first time.

They were chosen by the editors of the parent publication "Who's Who in America" from business, science, education, the arts, government and other fields, including civic activity.

The new names range from Dr. Frances O. Kelsey, winner of a Presidential Gold Medal for her exposter of the drug thalidomide, to comedienne Carol Burnett.

Needs have changed. The Girl Scout organization in 1955 decided to get an objective outside opinion. It commissioned two studies by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan to determine the interests and needs of adolescent girls today and of Girl Scouts in particular.

Then the Girl Scout National Program Department studied the findings and compared them with education trends and child development studies. It consulted with experts, came up with four age levels instead of the traditional three, and a new handbook was created for each of the four levels.

Off The Record:

—By BOB CLARK

Football Bug Biting

Football outdraws them all in the Pocono Mountains and Slate Belt regions. It is expected — weather permitting — nearly $1,000 grid fans will make their way into six high school stadiums and one college field this fall.

This is quite an assemblage of followers of the sport which pits two eleven against each other. While there are no official statistics to go by, we would hazard a guess that football in the Poconos and Slate Belt territories draws more diehards than baseball, basketball, track and wrestling put together.

It isn't easy to break down the estimated attendance planned for this year's combat on the gridirons. But we'll give it a try. At Pleasant Valley High School it is possible 6,000 will make their way to home games of the Bears. Pocono Mountains Joint should pull 7,500 to tilts at the Swiftwater school, while Stroud Union may hover around the 13,000 mark at Gordon Giffels Field. Over in East Stroudsburg the probable turnout will be 15,000. Bangor High School also may expect 15,000 persons going through their turnstiles. Pen Argyl High, with a new stadium on the hill, also has a chance to draw 15,000.

East Stroudsburg State College? Well the Warriors should be a magnet for far greater crowds than the official figures show. But with their small and uncomfortable set-up, ESSC will be lucky to have around the 13,000 mark. Some areas are basically basketball goody. However in the Poconos and Slate Belt, football is the dish morning, noon and night.

The reason? Ask the man who eats toast and drinks juice and coffee every ayeen. He can't give you an answer and neither can this corner.

Like the thousands of bugs of the grid game we join in the off-time fanatic whirling from September through New Year's day. It's in our blood and we imagine the individual who will make their way to our local ballyards this fall acting up.

The disease is an exhilarating feeling. We only wish thousands more could have the opportunity to watch Pleasant Valley, Pocono Mountain, East Stroudsburg, Stroud Union, Bangor, Pen Argyl High and East Stroudsburg State College eleven in action, September through Thanksgiving Day.

Believe me it is a treat whether you have a winner or a loser.

Math Student Leads 'Am' Golf Way

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Labron Harris, playing only as well as he had to, led a small army of candidates for the United States Amateur golf title into the second round Monday over the pinched fairways of the demanding Wakonda Club course.

The bespectacled mathematics student at Oklahoma State University, shooting as precisely as if he were demonstrating a problem in statistics, defeated Bill Cowardin Jr., of Newport News, Va., 8 and 6. He sunk one putt of 25 feet and another of 15 but missed six others of less than 10 feet.

Still in the running for the 1963 title with Harris after the first round of action over the 6,896 yards of the oak-walled course, where par is 36-36-72, are such threats as Deane Beman, Steve Spray, Dick Sikes, Charlie Coe, John Lotz, Dale Morey and Billy Joe Patton.

They triumphed in the congested first round that was more than an hour behind schedule because players took walks to neighboring hummocks to find their way to the green. There are blind shots on two-thirds of the holes.

A's Detour Yanks Flag Clinching

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees blew a 6-0 lead and delayed their American League day Monday, as the Kansas City Athletics swarmed from behind for a 7-4 victory with six runs in the seventh inning and another in the eighth on a squeeze bunt.

Jim Bouton, sailing into the seventh with a shutout and his 20th victory seemingly in his grasp, gave up a walk and a single and was replaced by Steve Hamilton, who contributed three walks and a two-run single to Wayne Causey. Hal Reniff relieved and walked in another run. The fifth came across when Ed Charles banged into a double play, then Charley Law singled the tying run across.

In the eighth, Bobby Del Greco singled and went to third when Reniff threw the ball away on a pickoff attempt. Jerry Lumpe squeezed him home.

Nicklaus Bypasses Golfdom's Best Tag

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Don't suggest to young Jack Nicklaus that the Big Three of golf is fast becoming the Big One. He's not ready to say he's made it all the way to the top.

"There are still so many things I've got to learn about this game," Nicklaus said in the wake of his second straight $50,000 victory in the 36-hole television spectacular dubbed the World Series of Golf. A year ago he turned back Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, the other part of golf's great triumvirate.

Saturday and Sunday, at the 7,165-yard, par 35-35-70 Firestone Country Club course, he won again over Palmer, U.S. Open champion, Julius Boros and British Open champ Bob Charles. His pair of 70s for a 140 total beat Boros, 72-69, by a shot; Palmer, 71-72, by three; and Charles 70-77, by seven.

"I still haven't got a putter I really like and I've still got to find the time to work on a putting rhythm," the 23-year-old Columbus, Ohio, star added. "There are a lot of finesse shots that I could hit better. And, heck, Arnold and Gary still are great players and will be for a long time. They're super putters and you don't win often when you don't putt well."

Last week, with a few days to spend at home before resuming his crammed schedule, the cheery-faced heavyweight passed up a chance to rest and instead went into a workshop to grind away on a putter he hopes to start using soon.

"It's a lot like Arnold," he said. "His putters feel great to me and I'm trying to make it just like his. The putter I'm using doesn't satisfy me and I'll stick with it until I see how the other one turns out."

"As for the putting rhythm, I'll continue to take probably too much time around the greens until I develop one. If you approach a putt the same way each time it speeds up your putting preparations."

This drive for excellence by probably the most brilliant young athlete to come along in golf since Bobby Jones is taking Nicklaus to unbelievable heights with blinding speed.

After his spectacular amateur career, he has won the U.S. Open, Masters and PGA within his first 18 months as a pro, and is collecting money at a pace that will someday dwarf the fantastic figures Pamer, now 33, has compiled.

In official PGA money alone, Nicklaus has won $145,333.95 since he launched his pro career in January of 1962. Add on the two $10,000 checks he's won in the World Series and the countless other profitable exhibitions he's played the last two summers and the figure probably approaches $400,000.

But to him it's still just the beginning.

Clark's Record 63 Leads Festival

SHAWNEE—Jim Clark, Argyle Country Club, Silver Springs, Md., fired a record setting 63 today in the first round of Fred Waring's annual Festival of Golf Invitational tournament. Clark rang up eight birdies and one eagle in shooting his nine under par round on the Red and White course at Shawnee.

In second place in the pro division of the tournament was Ralph Hutchinson, Saucan Valley Country Club, Bethlehem. Hutchinson toured the 18 hole course in 67. The pro-am team from the Courthouse Country Club in Fairfax, Va., led the team net ball match with a 14 under par 58. The team is composed of pro Melvin Rowe, and amateurs Walter Bordeaux, Tom McNamara and H. N. McLary.

The scratch scores of the other pros in the tournament were: Alex Sinclair, 68; Nick Tano, 70; Cosmo Tiso, 70; Chuck Rutan, 71; Dick Borthwick, 73; Rich Bassett, 74; Gordon Brydson, 74; Melvin Rowe, 74; Charles Muck, 75; Al Houghton, 76; Joe Vaeth, 76; Johnny Bass, 77; Carl Haveland, 77; Severn White, 77; Bill Stroubaugh, 79; Morgan Tiller, 80; Leo Kernan, 82; George Bird, 83; Bill Smith, 86.

Kansas City Rookie Grid Fatality

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) Stone Johnson, promising rookie for the Kansas City Chiefs and a runner for the United States in the 1960 Olympics, died Sunday night of a broken neck suffered in an exhibition football game eight days ago.

An attending physician attributed death to a fracture of the fifth cervical vertebra of the neck and spinal cord damage.

The physician, who declined use of his name, said an autopsy also revealed a blood clot in a lung artery. While this was a complication unknown previously, the physician said it was not the cause of death.

The 23-year-old halfback had been in serious condition since suffering a fractured neck vertebra in the game against the Houston Oilers. He was hurt on a first quarter kickoff when he dove to make a block in the game Aug. 31.

Johnson, 6-foot-1 and 180 pounds, was left paralyzed in the lower part of his body and partially paralyzed in the arms.

He underwent surgery before the end of the game and was placed in traction. Johnson had been kept motionless on his back since the injury.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Johnson of Dallas, Tex., had been at his bedside almost constantly.

Grosscup Seen Nixing Canada

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Quarterback Lee Grosscup, who signed with the Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference last week, will not join the club. Instead he will play with the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League, sources in Regina said Monday.

The former Utah State passing star played for the New York Giants of the National Football League and the New York Jets, formerly Titans, of the AFL, who was cut by the Jets recently.

Alston Sure LA Will Win

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Los Angeles' National League leading Dodgers are in Pittsburgh for the first game of a nine day road trip that may provide the answer to the baseball question of the month:

Can the club, which blew its lead in the final days of last year's pennant race, hang onto its margin over the soaring St. Louis Cardinals?

The Dodgers, idle Monday, led by 3½ games before Monday night's St. Louis-Chicago game. That's their skippiest margin since Aug. 15, when they were three ahead.

Cards Record Better
The Dodgers have won 8 of their last 12 games, which isn't bad. But St. Louis has won 11 of its last 12, which is considerably better.

The Dodgers took a 5-4 beating from San Francisco Sunday while the Cardinals were winning 3-2 over Pittsburgh.

The mood of the team is optimistic. Manager Walter Alston had said: "If we take one of the three in San Francisco I'll be satisfied." The team did just that.

And he doesn't think the 1963 collapse will affect 1963 chances. "When these fellows are pitching a ball or swinging a bat I doubt very much if they're thinking about last year," Alston said.

After three games against the Pirates and four at Philadelphia, the Dodgers go to St. Louis for three that could turn into the crucial series of the season.

After that, it's back to Los Angeles for the final home stand against Pittsburgh, New York and Philadelphia.

The Dodgers have nine of their remaining 19 games at home. St. Louis has 14 of its remaining 18 at home.

Cards Top Dodgers' Lead To 3

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Veteran left-hander Curt Simmons allowed five hits and the second-place St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Chicago Cubs 6-0 Monday night, trimming Los Angeles' National League lead to three games.

It was the streaking Cardinals' 12th victory in 13 games and cut another one-half game off a Dodgers lead that stood at seven games on Aug. 30. The Dodgers were not scheduled Monday night. The Cardinals have 17 games remaining, the Dodgers 19.

Simmons, boosting his record to 14-7, registered his fifth shutout of the season, his second in succession, and the 30th of his career. He walked only two and fanned three.

Only one Cub got as far as third base.

Aussie Gains Net Consolation

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (AP)—Australia's Margaret Smith, who lost her U.S. women's singles title to Brazil's Maria Bueno Sunday, gained some consolation Monday.

The tall, husky Australian champion and countryman Ken Fletcher completed an unprecedented mixed doubles grand slam Monday by defeating Judy Tegart, another Australian, and Ed Rubinoff of Miami in a delayed wrapup of the American title final, 3-6, 8-6, 6-2.

Darkness forced a halt of the final Sunday after the completion of the first two sets. The Australians won the clashing set easily.

The Smith-Fletcher team earlier this year captured the Australian, French, Italian, and English Wimbledon championships.

JAMES Jacobson, 21, of Swan Valley, Idaho, will captain Dartmouth's ski team next winter.

3 Clubs Get Nod To Print Series Ducats

CHICAGO (AP) — The New York Yankees of the American League and the Los Angeles Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals of the National League were authorized to print tickets by Commissioner Ford Frick Monday in completing plans for the World Series.

The Yankees, who lead the American League by 14½ games, were represented by General Manager Roy Hamer. Representing the league leading Dodgers was Buzzie Bavasi and appearing for the Cardinals, who trailed Los Angeles by 3½ games, was Art Rout-zong.

Frick said the Series would open in the American League city Oct. 2. The second game would be played there Oct. 3 and Oct. 4 will be an open date with the third, fourth and fifth game, if necessary, to be played in the National League city Oct. 5-7.

In case of a tie in the National League race, Warren Giles, president of the National League, said the best-of-3 playoff would begin Monday, Sept. 30, and continue without a break.

A flip of the coin would give the winning team the option of playing the first game at home and the last two, if necessary, on the road or the first game on the road and the last two at home. In case of a league playoff, Frick said he would then announce new dates for the World Series.

Art Exhibit Opened At ESSC

EAST STROUDSBURG—George Johnson, Director of Exhibitions for the East Stroudsburg State College art gallery, has announced the opening of the first art exhibit for the 1963-64 year.

Opened Monday, September 9, and running through September 27, is an African Sculpture exhibit from the Segy Gallery in New York.

The Segy Gallery has one of the finest collection of African art in the world and the sculpture on exhibit at East Stroudsburg State College represents some of the choice pieces from the collection.

To compliment the exhibit, Ladidas Segy will make a personal visit to the college campus on Wednesday, September 11. Segy will present an illustrated lecture in the college auditorium at 1 p.m. The lecture is open to the public and Segy will hold a discussion period with audience following the completion of the lecture.

Segy is the author of many books and publications on African art. Among them are "African Sculpture Speaks" and "African Sculpture." Segy is considered as one of America's foremost authorities on African art.

Johnson emphasized that the ESSC Art Gallery is open to the public from 2 a. m. to 5 p. m., Monday through Friday, and that visitors are welcome.

AFRICAN SCULPTURE—One of the art pieces on display during the current exhibit at East Stroudsburg State College is the picture mask of the Baule tribe located on the Ivory Coast of Africa. It is a cult mask based on the concept that it became the abode of the spirit of a deceased ancestor. This and many other art pieces can be seen during the current exhibit in the ESSC art gallery.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Tuesday, September 10, 1963

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Your optimism and merely dissatisfied are two very different things; take care which course you follow. — and how you work the objective can be defeated by careless procedure. Gains increasing.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — There's so much more to this day than shows on the surface. Your particular talents are stimulated by its best aspects, so USE them to the best of your ability. Personal affairs also favored.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Excellent planetary influences, but you MUST cooperate with them. Use of authority must be by logical, step-by-step means, not force, or it can be resented. Seek wise counsel when stymied.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Stellar aspects favorable now; sponsor both long pending projects, and new enterprises. Emphasize good will, moderation, AND good humor.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — This day's vibrations favor the accomplishment of difficult matters, tedious but vitally important, and generally. Display your talents where they will do the most good, but don't overexert.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — A willingness to use the best of this day offers the most. Much will not be in front of the plodder, the lack of initiative and the unenthusiastic. Fine weather in the offing.

September 23 to October 22 (Libra) — Do not be disappointed if others seem to surpass you. Keep trying. Launch the full strength of your abilities on the essentials of this day. Many dividends will ensue.

October 23 to November 22 (Scorpio) — You may be faced with some unusual propositions. Investigate them from the point of view of long-range benefits, and consider whether or not they suit YOUR standards. Some misleading influences prevail.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A day in which to avoid making hasty decisions and you should have smooth sailing. Make the most of your all-around competence and good judgment.

December 23 to January 22 (Capricorn) — Beware of dubious schemes in attractive dress, maybe deceptive bits of "advice." Be especially careful in matters with which you are not familiar.

January 23 to February 22 (Aquarius) — Just because you yourself inaugurated a new project or system, don't take offense if others should suggest improvements. You could learn a great deal from the wisdom and experiences of associates.

February 23 to March 22 (Pisces) — Disposition and emotions will be a big factor in your endeavors now. To achieve worthwhile goals, you will need the cooperation of others, so don't be aggressive or try to force issues.

YOU BORN TODAY are one of the most thorough, steady-going and down-to-earth people of the Zodiac. You are highly artistic, capable of making tremendous new changes when necessary, and are likely to travel much, meet a variety of people, and have more than one career or occupation during an interesting, at times brilliant, life. This, of course, is the reason on the higher plane, developing his full abilities and magnanimous side. Undeveloped, the Virgin is self-centered, interested only in personal aggrandizement, praise-seeking. Curb this side of your nature and your many talents and willingness to assist will inspire others. Birthdate: John Crittenden, American statesman.

Stock In Merger

By William A. Doyle

Q. My husband has 300 shares of Socony Mobil Oil Co. stock. We read that this company and Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corp. have merged. Does this mean he will get more shares of stock, less dividends, or what?

A. First, let's get squared away on the fact that the merger has not been accomplished just yet. Stockholders of both these companies will vote on the merger proposal at meetings on Nov. 20. It's most probable that stockholders will approve and the two companies will become one.

The only possible fly in the ointment might be a move by the U.S. Department of Justice to block the proposed merger, as a violation of the anti-trust provisions of the Clayton Act. But that is considered unlikely.

Assuming that the merger goes through, your husband will end up with the same number of Socony Mobil shares that he now owns.

The merger plan calls for Socony Mobil to issue 1,183,800 of its shares in exchange for all the outstanding common and convertible preferred stock of Virginia-Carolina Chemical. Stockholders of Virginia-Carolina Chemical will become stockholders of Socony Mobil.

So, as far as your husband and other Socony Mobil stockholders are concerned, there will be no change in the number of shares each owns and, certainly, no indication of any reduction in dividends.

Socony Mobil has been doing well. Its profits have increased steadily since 1959—following a two-year slump. The dividend payments on its stock were increased in 1961, 1962 and again this year.

The merger will make Socony Mobil a bigger company. That should result in higher profits and (hopefully) for stockholders) more dividend increases in the future.

Q. I believe I read in your column a statement to the effect that all Series H, U.S. Savings Bonds, continue to draw interest, even after their maturity dates. I have a bulletin from the U.S. Treasury Department which states that "Series H bonds issued from June, 1952, through January, 1957," have been extended for second maturity periods.

Has there been a change, so that H bonds issued after January, 1957, have that privilege?

A. No. But, nonetheless, the point is that all Series H bonds are drawing interest.

The first H bonds were issued in June, 1952. When those earliest H bonds reached the end of their first maturity period, in June, 1957, the Treasury Department gave them an extended maturity period. Bailed down, this means that H bonds issued from June, 1952, through January, 1957, draw interest for 20 years.

H bonds issued after January, 1957, have still not reached their first maturities. So, as pointed out in the previous column, all H bonds now outstanding are currently drawing interest.

Many observers feel that the Treasury Department will continue to extend maturity periods on H bonds as those bonds reach the end of their current maturity periods. That would mean that all H bonds would always continue to draw interest—much the same as all Series E bonds do now.

But whether or not the Treasury Department will make that move is a moot question. I gave up years ago trying to figure what the Federal government might do.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)

Spare Those Rattlesnakes, Tocks Planners Are Asked

PHILADELPHIA — Rattlesnakes sunning themselves on the Kittatinny Mountains above the Delaware Water Gap have found a friend.

Their champion is a research team of naturalists who have recommended that the rattlesnakes be protected in the proposed multi-million-dollar development of Tocks Island recreation area.

The scientists have surveyed 72,000 acres on both sides of the Delaware River from the Delaware Water Gap to Port Jervis, N. Y.

The purpose was to inventory the plant life, geology and animals so the National Park Service can plan the future use of the land.

Rattlesnake Dens
Among the naturalists' finds were rattlesnake dens in the remote uplands of the wilderness.

The snakes, they reported, "assemble in the dens in September."

The dens are caves or crevices entered through small holes in the cliffs. Sometimes the snakes emerge to sun themselves, but retreat in cold weather and don't reappear until spring.

And although most persons think of rattlesnakes as something to get rid of, the survey team said the dens should "be definitely preserved as areas of great natural history."

Bald Eagle Spotted

The scientists also spotted a bald eagle in the Milford highlands. This vanishing bird, the national symbol, may increase its number if the land is developed, the surveyists said.

Hearings on the creation of 35-mile recreation area are pending in Washington.

The recreation area was first proposed by the U.S. Army Engineer District. It was part of a decision by the Army Engineers to dam the Delaware River at Tocks Island, about six miles upstream from the Delaware Water

Plans In Project

The project would provide flood control, an adequate water supply for metropolitan areas including Philadelphia, hydroelectric power and recreation facilities. The cost would total about $177 million.

Legislation for construction of the dam has been approved. The dam is expected to be completed in 1975.

The survey for the National Park Service was made by Lehigh University's Institute of Research.

Area Veterans Attend 20th Anniversary Of Salerno

EAST STROUDSBURG — Three men returned Saturday after attending the 20th celebration of the 36th Infantry Division and the landing on Italian soil in Salerno.

Attending were Henry W. Weidaw of Skytop, Alfred C. Reisenwitz of Delaware Water Gap, and Eldon Larsh of East Stroudsburg RD 3.

The American team at Salerno included the 36th Inf. Div., a National Guard unit from Texas; 45th Inf. Div., a National Guard unit from Oklahoma, and the 3rd Army Div. Several units from the United Kingdom also landed troops.

U. S. forces, numbering more than 55,000 men, came ashore on Sept. 9, 1943, about 4 a.m. under the darkness of night and early dawn. The Germans were outnumbered by more than a two-to-one ratio.

Hard fighting on the beach and in the town drove enemy troops out of the area and a beachhead for the Allies was established on the Mediterranean side of the continental battlefield. Losses on both sides ran high and the landing has been referred to by many who were there as, "The beach paved with blood that was the welcome mat to all other GI's in the area."

The 36th Division held its anniversary celebration in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City. There were more than 300 former members attending the event.
